was the answer of one of the traffic men of national fame that Mr. McAdoo has called to Washington when he was asked if the national railway administration had evolved any really sensational, epoch-making policies. "We haven't any policies. I haven't even a desk yet. About the only general policies. To got him.

Similarly if we relieve the Baltimore & Ohio of its Cleveland through business it will be able to haul a greater tonage between Baltimore and Cincinnati. This is equally true, of course, of east-bound business. At the same time we climinate waste of transportation between Cincinnati and Cleveland and provide greater capacity for business that properly pertains thereto because those tracks no longer handle any through Eastern business. Get me?"

"The public does not think at all of some of the economies of effort and time that are obviously possible to a railroad man. Op the other hand, some of the things that the public most fondly dwells on in connection with the unification of the railroads may not be brought about at all, at least in no such degree as it fondly anticipates. Almost any casual talker can tell you all about the pooling of terminals. Sounds fine, but there has really been very little of it as yet, and I doubt if there will be relatively a great deal, though there will be many eases where it can be done very advantageously. I am not talking now about what might be under permanent government control or ownership. It is plain that for the period of the war it would not be advisable to compact the period of the period of the war it would not be advisable to compact the period of the "Now," he continued. "let us assume that CB represents the Pennsylvania in from Baltimore to Cleveland and CA the Baltimore & Ohio line from Baltimore to Cincinnati, BA the Pennsylvania's line from Cleveland to Cincinnati and AB the Baltimore & Ohio's connection from Cincinnati to Cleveland. The Baltimore & Ohio, according to the diagram, is plainly the direct line from Baltimore to Cincinnati and the Pennsylvania is the short line from Baltimore to Cleveland. The former, of course, has been accepting freight for Cleveland. Now, if we relieve the Pennsylvania of all Cincinnati freight for Cleveland. Now, if we relieve the Pennsylvania of all Cincinnati freight for Cleveland. Now, if we relieve the Pennsylvania of all Cincinnati freight from Baltimore it is plain that it will have more room for handling Baltimore-Cleveland freight.

this as an explanation to you and to do justice to the Secretary of War. I was induced, upon pressing application, to authorize agents of one of the districts of Pennsylvania to recruit in one of the prisoner depots in Illinois; and the thing went so far before it came to the knowledge of the Secretary of War that in my judgment it could not be abandoned without greater evil than would follow its going through. I did not know at the time that you had protested against that class of thing being done; and I now say that while this particular job must be completed, no other of the sort will be authorized without an understanding with you, if at all. The Secretary of War is wholly free of any part in this blunder.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.— In the chapel of the Franciscan Monastery the noon to-day the marriage of Miss William Bradley Randall, to Vernon Radcliffe, who is connected with the photographic division of the aviation department of the United States Signal Corps. The ceremony took place at the Hermitage, the country home of the bride's parents, on Park Lane, Pelham Manor. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William L. Sullivan, pastor of All Souls' Church, Manhattan. It was a simple military wedding, because the bridegroom expects to be called to France on short notice. The bride's only attendant was Miss Katherine Seymour, and her brother, Bradley Randall, was best man.

Life Insurance men will not participate in the discussion because most of them have already started war saving societies in their companies. In inspiring the employes of the New York Life Insurance Company to form 'Arrit' organizations, L. Seton Lindsay, of the New York Life, declared: "Each of those stars in our service flag represents one man gone from your department to the front. Those who remain behind will have to work overtime to make up for the absence of the men 'over there.' They will be paid for this overtime work, and they should contribute some of their increased earnings to the government for the purpose of supporting their former associates who are now at the front. "The best way in which this can be done successfully is by investing this money in war savings stamps and joining a war savings society in order that their savings may be turned over they may feel they, as a body, are supporting the men who went from their midst.
